100th Amiversary

The original Fairhaven High School was opened, for its first term, on January 26, 1852, the date for opening which had been decided at a meeting of the school committee on November 1, 1851.

The school was located on the site where the Huttleston Apartments now stand, and the building, which originally was used as a Methodist church, was refitted and adapted to school purposes at a cost of $4,500. M. L. Montague was named the first principal of the school, at a salary of $80 a month; his two assistants were Miss Angeline B. King and Miss Hannah A. Bryant.

Entrance requirements, as stated by the school committee, were "a good knowledge of arithmetic through simple interest, English, grammar in parsing, geography sufficient to be familiar with maps, reading, and spelling."

Fairhaven's great benefactor, Henry Huttleston Rogers, was a member of the original class.

Foreword

1852 - 1952 - 2052

1852 — Franklin Peirce was elected president — and it was the year that Fairhaven High School had its birth. Much has happened during the 100 years that our school has been in existence—wars, panics, depressions, inventions, and discoveries. And yet our nation and our school have persevered, grown, and survived — both from humble beginnings.

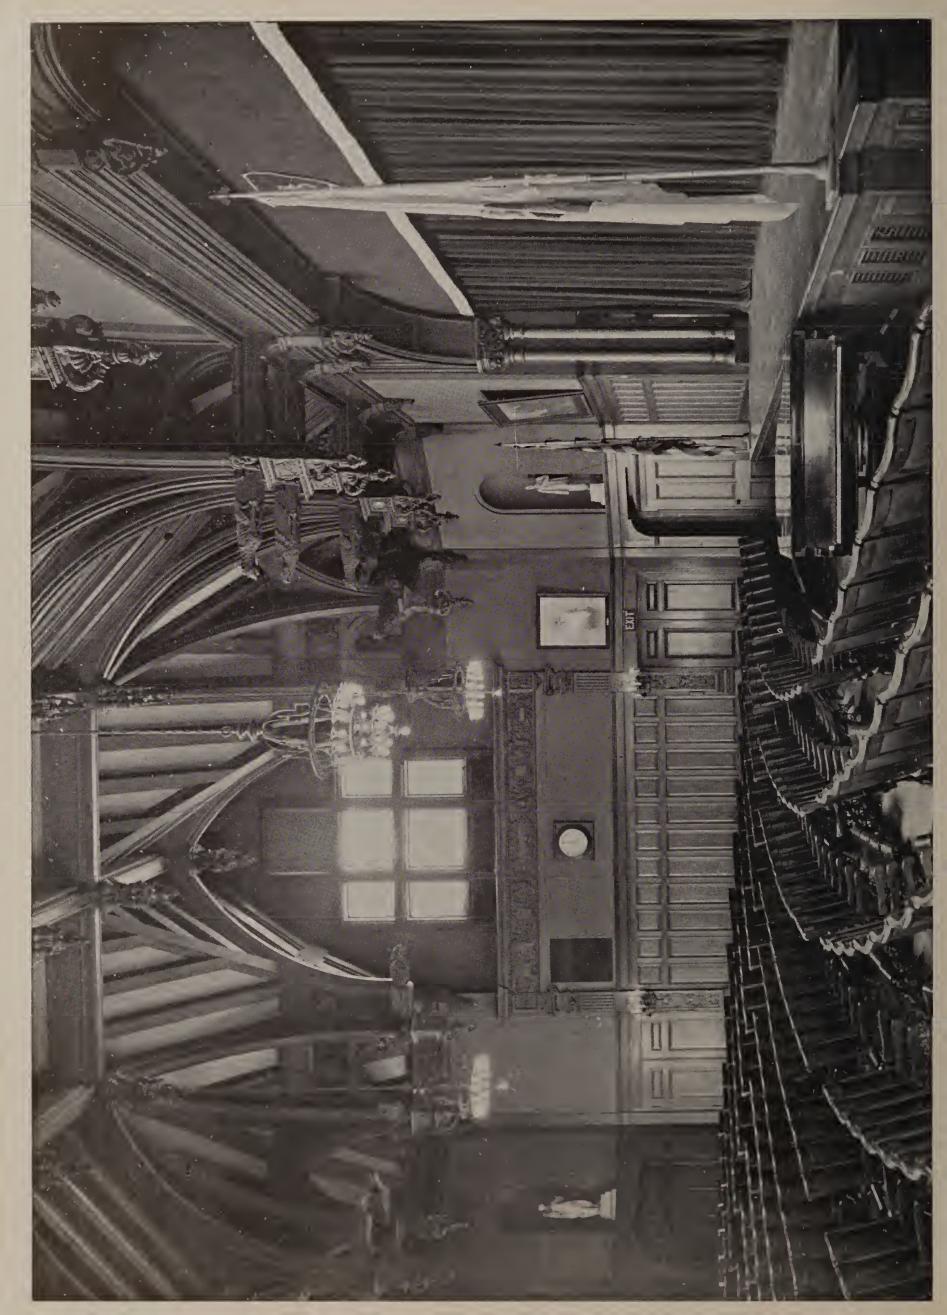

1952 also promises to be an eventful and historical year; the next hundred years will be filled with new wonders. Now we, the class of "52", stand amidst the tumult of the 20th century; we are the ones who will help to mold and guide the future — perhaps we shall be the ones to find its long sought peace.

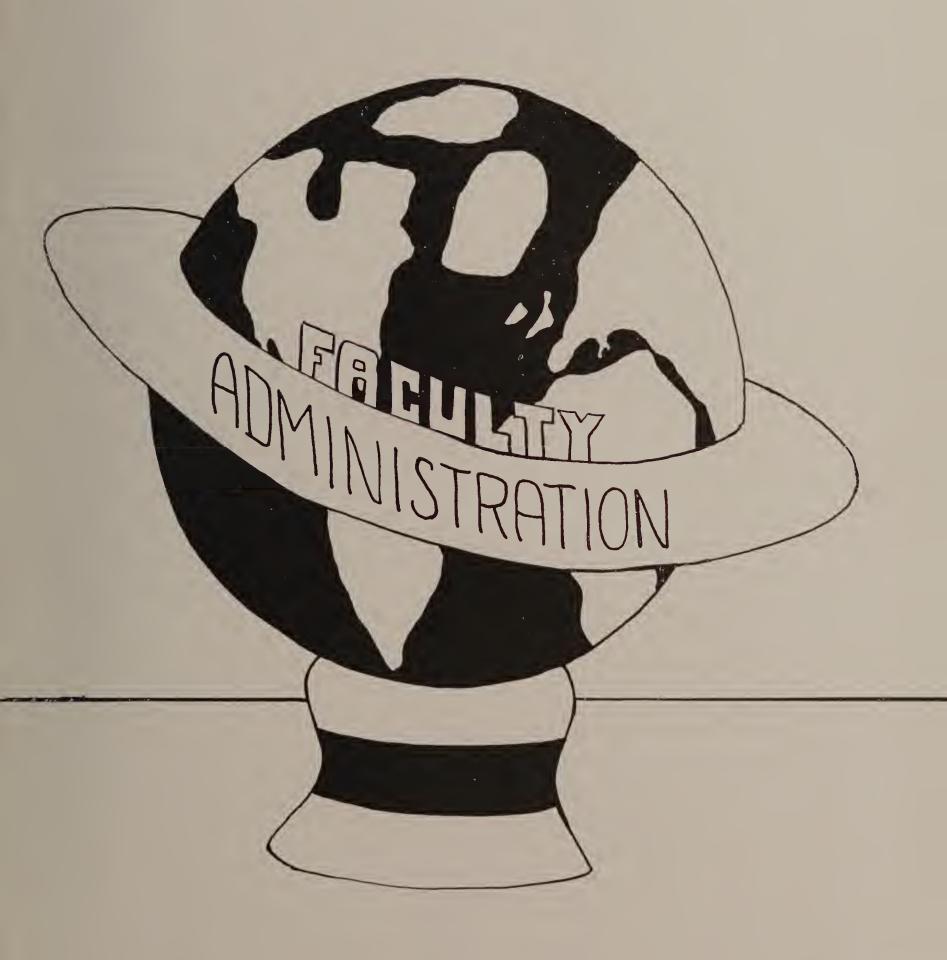

Let us move forward humbly — never forgetting the principles and ideals passed down and entrusted to us by those who have walked before us in these hallowed halls — our taskmasters. May we forge forward carrying before us the hopes and prayers of the past 100 years — that the class of 2052 may look back and say — "Hats off to 1952 — they fulfilled their aims well."

FAIRHAVEN HIGH SCHOOL

OFFICE OF THE PRINCIPAL

To the Class of 1952:

Oliver Wendell Holmes wrote a humorous poem about a wonderful one horse shay, that was so well built that it ran a hundred years to a day before it fell apart. In this poem we read:

"Little of all we value here Wakes on the morn of its hundredth year Without both looking and feeling queer." Fairhaven High School waked on the morn of its hundredth year on January 26, 1952 and began at once its second century of service. To us it did not look queer, and, because changes had come gradually through the long years, I do not think it felt queer, but its aspect and atmosphere were certainly different from those which greeted the first class one hundred years ago. Theirs was a plain building unadorned within and without — an old meeting house converted at moderate expense for school purposes. Ours is a building beautiful to behold fashioned of the finest materials to provide a place where students may work surrounded by inspiring examples of the handiwork of master craftsmen. There were few pupils then, and the narrow curriculum was composed of the relatively few subjects thought necessary in a high school course. There are many pupils now, and our broader curriculum embraces many subjects about which people need to know today if they are to think and act intelligently.

It is easy for us to multiply the differences between their school and ours. Their schoolhouse is gone; if we want to know how it looked, we must examine old photographs. Their textbooks are so scarce as to be collector's items. Their teachers and the members of the Class of 1852 have gone to their reward. How then has the school survived?

When we say our school is a hundred years old, what is it that has endured so long? If you show me a piece of fine china made in 1852, there it is before us much as it came from the hand of the potter, but the Fairhaven High School we know is quite different from the school that opened its doors a century ago.

The difference, of course, is that a piece of china is finished, static, and dead, while a school is developing, growing, and alive. It is the organization that continues even though teachers and learners come and go.

We know that a school can preserve and pass on ideas and ideals. Let us determine to keep alive the most worthy of the ideals that have been taught here. Among these let me mention two, each connected with a man. The first man is Henry H. Rogers, and the ideal is generosity. From his abundant wealth he gave freely to beautify and benefit his town. Are we doing as much in proportion to our means as he did, or do we say because we have little, we need it all for ourselves? The other man is Charles F. Prior who was Superintendent of Schools here for many years, and the ideal is intelligent participation in practical politics. Mr. Prior suggested our motto - "The noblest motive is the public good," and to encourage young people to learn how to participate in community betterment, he organized the Fairhaven Junior Improvement Association of which most of you have been members. Shall we say F. J. I. A. is for children and politics is for those who would enrich themselves at public expense, or shall we learn the ways of democracy in school days and determine to make it work in practical ways as we become adults? The answer lies with you. In a day when there is emphasis on selfish getting, Mr. Rogers gives us an example of generous giving; and in a time when revelations of dishonesty make us question the soundness of our government, Mr. Prior reminds us that if we want good government we must do our share to make it and keep it so.

Of course there are other traits that have stood the test of the years. You know them: honesty, loyalty, kindness, and reverence. I urge you to acquire and treasure them as precious coins that are unaffected by depression or inflation. With them you are prepared to buy the respect of your fellows and of your own conscience.

Sincerely your friend, Chester M. Downing Principal

ELEGY WRITTEN IN A HURRY

Twas the night before the deadline And throughout the school was heard. The scratching of three diligent pens. Who sought the telling word.

The time was short, our days were few, We certainly had some work to do!

We thought and thought for many a day Of the compliments that we should pay To the outstanding class of '52 — But our ideas were very few.

"Senior" is the word to be defined By Juniors who are of ingenious mind. S-means superiority
Exceeded only by
The perfect class of '53
Which no one will deny.

E—stands for untold energy

The most of which they waste

In Talent Shows, as you can see,

Or studying in haste.

N—is for the nobility
Which this mighty class displays.
In all their actions, one can see
The greatness of their ways.

I—stands for ingenuity
Which is difficult to find
In these Seniors of unique ability
And extraordinary mind.

O—is for the oncoming years

For which they are preparing,

A future filled with many fears
In which they shall be daring.

R—is for the recessional

The walk which takes them on

Toward Practical Fields, or Professional—

The fate for which they're born.

Sometimes it has been quite a task,
With music, tests, and studies.
"Was it worth the effort?", one might ask,
"Why, sure — we're just a group of buddies!"

Perhaps we've said some sarcastic things To you, dear elders of ours,

But as you leave, a melody rings Of the happy and joyous hours Spent here with us these past few years, Filled with laughter and with tears.

INSIDE F. H. S. by John Gunther

Publisher's note: John Gunther, author of such famous works as "Inside U. S. A." — "Inside Asia" and "Inside Europe", presents a condensation of his new masterpiece, "Inside F. H. S."

CHAPTER 1

On September 8, 1948, a new era of Fairhaven High School history opened with the entrance of the class of 1952. The following chapters will show their rise to power.

Elections were held and the following officers chosen: Dorothy Leitao, president; Russell Arruda, vice-president; Constance Sherman, secretary; and Anthony Albert, treasurer.

In the spring of 1949, a very successful Talent Show was presented under the direction of Miss Malone, the Freshman Class Advisor.

Meanwhile the contemporaries of this class were upholding their own government in Mattapoisett under the leadership of their president Polly Field, and her fellow officers which included Dorothy Alden, vice-president, and Robert Silveira, treasurer. They very successfully presented a class play "Keep Moving" and an operetta "Cinderella."

CHAPTER 2

After a restful summer, we returned to classes on September 7, 1949, and the class was supplemented by the addition of the Mattapoisett contingent.

Officers for the year included Dorothy Leitao, president; Russell Arruda, vice-president; Anthony Albert, secretary, and Louise Lopes, treasurer.

A Harvest Dance was held in October in the gym, and a good time was enjoyed by all who attended.

Fairhaven High's great basketball team went all the way up to Boston Garden to play in the tournament and came home as the Class B champions. To show their appreciation for the great honor brought to the high school, the Sophomore Class helped sponsor a Victory Dance for the team before the boys left for a trip to New York City.

CHAPTER 3

September 6, 1950, and once again the doors were opened to the Class of 1952. As Juniors, they accomplished a great deal in a very eventful year, guided by their class officers, Russell Arruda, president, Louise Lopes, vice-president, Anthony Albert, secretary, and Dorothy Leitao, treasurer.

The spring of 1951 was especially busy for this ambitious group of classmates. The Freshman-Junior Dance was a big success and the gym was colorfully decorated with bright, spring birds and flowers made by the skillful Junior art students.

The basketball team was again invited to the M. I. T. tournament and again returned vietorious. Along with Bart Leach the two Junior standouts, Vernon Gomes and Bob Honohan, were selected to the all tournament team. They returned vietorious after the thrilling finals with Matignon.

Next eame the never-to-be-forgotten Junior Talent Show on Mareh 21, 1951. With "Colonel Taylor's Showboat" in the background, the Juniors displayed their great talent to the rest of the student body.

Perhaps the most memorable event of the year was the Junior Prom. The auditorium was beautifully decorated with a gay and attractive Mexican theme, and everyone danced to the music of Bud Lilley's orchestra. Attractive Carol Scott was crowned Queen of the Prom and her attendant was charming Maureen Huggard.

The year eame to an end with the thrilling and very exciting Junior Day. Russell Arruda accepted the mantle from Barton Leach and then a group of Juniors, led by Judith Jenney, Daniel Walsh, and Leman Bradley, had a chance to tell the Seniors just how wonderful the Juniors were.

CHAPTER 4

The last year for the Class of '52 began on September 5, 1951. A political revolution took place, and Charles Hazard was eleeted president of the Senior Class with Dorothy Leitao, vice-president; Anthony Albert, seeretary, and Carol Seott, treasurer.

Daniel C. Walsh was appointed editor-in-ehief of the yearbook, the "Huttlestonian," which should be exceptionally good this year.

The Junior-Senior Danee was held on November 16, 1952 with a large group of the student body attending.

Representatives from the class tried to put through a bill for a Senior Talen Show for three months, but it was finally vetoed in the Senate by the faculty advisors.

Tryouts for the Senior Play, "Good Housekeeping," were held, and top billing was given to Lorraine MacLennan and Robert MeMullen. The production promises to be really outstanding when it is presented sometime in March, 1952.

The year is nearly half over, but there is still a great deal to look forward to — another Junior Day and of course, the memorable Senior Prom.

Although everyone looks forward to graduation, you can be sure that when June 18, 1952, rolls around, there won't be very many dry eyes as the last goodbyes are said to old friends and to the "greatest little school there ever was — Fairhaven High School."

the Year

Class Prophecy

Good evening ladies and gentlemen, this is your WFHVN announcer, Bob Silveira, speaking to you from outside Le Petit Theatre, where to-night we shall see the world premiere of Bill Walker's new musical comedy, "Centennial Follies." Yes, folks — tonight the long awaited production will be seen for the first time. It stars the famous Broadway actress, Lorraine MacLennan, with the noted singer, Robert McMullen, singing the male lead, and features the eminent comedian, Pete Zubrisky, in the role of Horatio Q. Birdbath.

There are a great many celebrities here tonight, and among them we have seen the rich oil magnate, Mr. David Jorgensen and his wife, the former Miss Polly Field; Mr. Larry Rose, Pres. of National Drug Co., and the prominent textile manufacturer, Mr. Peter Perkins.

A large black limousine carrying more celebrities has just rolled up in front of the theatre; the doorman, David Hassett, has just opened the door — and stepping out is the French Ambassador, Richard Audette, and his attache, Albert Desrosiers.

Police Chief Clarence Dearden has a large contingent of men on duty tonight as the crowds here are tremendous — wait, the crowd seems to be pressing forward around some person — I can't identify him yet because of the milling throng — here come some police officers — they're trying to disperse the mob. Here come Sergeant Francis Downey and Patrolmen Robert Law, Raymond Amaral, and Rodney Souza. They've succeeded in pushing the crowd back — maybe I can find out the cause of all the commotion — oh yes, it was Abbott McMullen, the famous romantic actor, besieged by a crowd of autograph seekers.

Now I'm going to turn the "mike" over to Miss Dorothy Alden, our fashion expert, who will describe some of the gowns worn by the socialites in attendance here tonight.

Thank you, Bob, and good evening friends—there are some beautiful gowns here tonight, and they are worn by some of the town's wealthiest and best dressed women as well as celebrities from all over the country. Two of the most charming gowns I have yet seen were worn by Mmes. Dorothy Leitao, in shocking pink with Kelly green sequins, and Constance Sherman in orange and violet net. Miss Carol Powers chose Chartreuse with crimson rhinestones, while Sylvia Langevin is charming in an exclusive Robert Russell creation of organdy in irridescent green.

The costumes in tonight's show are all lovely creations designed by Joan Millette, Arlene Duarte, Marie Santos, and Joan Sylvia.

Some of the other prominent women I have seen scattered throughout the audience are Phyllis Herrick, Claire Fleurent, Naomi Viera, Betty Boyle, and Maureen Huggard — all well known T.V. stars. Now I'll turn the microphone back to Bob.

All right, Dottie—thank you for those fine descriptions of the gowns. About to enter the theatre now is the big time gambler and night club owner, Russell Arruda, surrounded by his body guards and henchmen, Leo Meekin, Augustine Silveira, Manuel Ventor, and Vernon Cathcart.

Here comes wealthy M. Anthony Murray, who is one of the backers of the show, accompanied by Miss Patricia Brunette, his secretary. Alighting from his limousine is the manufacturing tycoon Robert Brennan, President of Superannuated, Educated, Sophisticated, Pneumatic Troughs Inc. & Ltd. With Mr. Brennan is Mr. Daniel Mello, another backer of the show.

We're going inside the theatre now to try to pick out a few more celebrities. As I enter the lobby, I can see Leman Bradley, Capt. of oil magnate Jorgensen's yacht, talking to the famous restaurant owner, Louis Xifaras; over on the far side I can see the millionaire playboy John Cabral. According to the gossip columns, John has been seen nightly with chorus girls Jean Govoni, Beverly Johnson, Nancy Hathaway, Adrianne Iacoponi, and Janice Bumpus.

As I enter the auditorium, I see Bob Honohan, head coach at the University of Mattapoisett, and his wife, the former Joan Worthington.

Head usher, Ernest Nicholas, is escorting the famed scientist, Hubert Hemmingway, and Miss Carol Hirst to their seats. In the first row I can see such famous people as the Hollywood actresses, Miss Shirley Townsend and Miss Carol Scott; the noted critic, Miss Karin Anderson; Senator Donald Southworth; and Miss Anita Cornell, author of the new best seller, "Why Cuttyhunk?"

Also in this large audience I see Miss Judith Jenney, whose engagement to the Mayor of Rochester was announced last week.

We are going to return to the street in front of the theatre in a few minutes, but before we do I'd like to tell you a little more about this show and name a few more members of the cast. Miss Barbara Fernandes is singing the role of Madam Flutterby; George Cook plays the proverbial butler; Charles Alferes appears as the villain, Meat Cleaver Joe; and Nancy Anthony, Delores Dias, Polly Rusinoski, and Eleanor Costa perform in the acrobatic dances.

The sets were designed by Pat Sisson, Delores Sousa, and Harriet Garcia; makeup is by Cynthia Tripp, Barbara Sylvia, and Lila Brennan; hair styles are by Barbara Long, Jacqueline Sirois, and Regina Dooley. The prompter is Anne Pallatroni, Miss Gail Cheetham is Director of Choreography, and the entire show was produced and directed by Wendell Warrington.

The orchestra, under the direction of Linus Eldridge, is tuning up. Many famous musicians are playing with Linus tonight — among them, Anthony Albert, Robert Govoni, Leopold LaBonte, and Donald Smith.

Cigarette girls Vicky Razon and Ruth Mills are dispensing their wares as we move toward the lobby. The assistant doorman, Albert Bernard, is making way for me to get through with this equipment.

In the lobby, now, ushers Bernard Olsen, Owen Mellody, and Raymond Sylvia are about to escort Mayor Charles Hazard and his party to their seats.

There seems to be some sort of difficulty going on over at the candy stand — popcorn vendor, Norman Ferland, is arguing with Dick Hall, the manager, about the price of Hershey Bars.

A delegation from the Society For the Banishment of Dramatic Censorship, headed by Eleanor Tetrault, has just entered.

A press car has just pulled up and a reporter is getting out — it looks like Dan "Hot News" Walsh.

Entering now, I see Miss Florence Garcia, who has just returned from a six month engagement in New York where she sang the "Star Spangled Banner" before the fights at Madison Square Garden. She is accompanied by Misses Carol Campbell and Barbara Roderick, her press-agents.

I'm back outside the theatre again. A taxi, driven by Raymond LeBeau, has just pulled up at the curb and a group of the town's most eligible bachelors; Joseph Sylvia, George Feener, Ray Amaral, and Robert Augustine, are getting out. They are purchasing boutonnieres from Edith Hunton, who is hawking a basket of nosegays on the sidewalk.

The Boston Celtics star, Vernon Gomes, is arriving now as are Robert Burbank, President of Inter-City Trans. Co., Joseph Dawicki of Dandy Peanut Co., Dr. Frank Motta, automobile manufacturer, big game hunter Raymond Armbruster, and Louise Lopes, President of a local Argyle concern.

Also among the "first nighters" are Nancy Furtado and Nancy Frates, proprietors of the Frates-Furtado Funeral Home; Sally Silveira, President of the Mattapoisett Botanical Association and breeder of the new prize-winning flower, "Rosebud's Rosy Rose", and Miss Blenda Covill, the noted horsewoman.

Well, Folks, that's about the scene from Le Petit Theatre, where in three minutes the curtain will rise on "Centennial Follies," the new musical, so we'll return you now to our studios. This is your announcer Bob Silveira signing off.

Class Will

- We, the Class of 1952, being of sound mind and body, do hereby proclaim this our last will and testament.
- Item I: To Mr. Clement, Carol Scott leaves her place on the cheering squad.
- Item II: David Hassett leaves his gym shorts to Danny Rogers, along with a sufficient supply of rubber bands.
- Item III: Linus Eldredge bequeaths three wet mackerel to "Biffy" Mac-Lean to start him off in business.
- Item IV: Hubert Hemingway leaves his two false teeth to Denny Rezendes.
- Item V: To Miss Hoyle, Louise Lopes leaves a book entitled "How to Knit Argyles by the Fire with a Cat."
- Item VI: Anthony Albert bestows on Claudia Russell his noisemaking ability. (Look out teachers that's a double dose.)
- Item VII: Tony Murray leaves his abundant supply of alibis to Stephen Wong.
- Item VIII: Robert Brennan leaves one slightly used cigarette butt to Mr. Wood.
- Item IX: Charles Hazard leaves his great mathematical abilities to Marie Ehnes.
- Item X: Donald Smith leaves all of his musical talents to Peggy O'Leary.
- Item XI: Lorraine MacLennan bequeaths her poodle haircut to Mrs. Cromie so that she can illustrate a typical African hairdress to her History Class.
- Item XII: Peter Zubrisky and Norman Ferland gladly leave the faculty advisory board and their talent shows.
- Item XIII: Russell Arruda leaves his non-effective political machines and a hand-printed pamphlet "How to Vote More Than Once" to anyone just anyone!
- Item XIV: Hamlet's Ghost, we leave to Mr. Dias so that he may evermore be haunted by the 1952 Class spirit.
- Item XV: Vernon Gomes leaves his red suspenders to Bob Davidson.
- Item XVI: Louis Xifaras sadly bequeaths his wardrobe to any Junior boy who wants to make a hit with the girls.
- Item XVII: Betty Boyle leaves Cynthia Black a genuine swamp style alligator pocketbook to add to her growing collection.
- Item XVIII: To Paul Dumas, Bob Honohan leaves his extra weight.
- Item XIX: To Rosemary Richards, Adrienne Iacoponi leaves her athletic abilities.
- Item XX: Edith Hunton wills her autograph collection to Betty Pepin who already has a good start.
- Item XXI: To the Junior Class, Daniel Walsh leaves one slightly worn talent show script.

Senior Class Play

A psychology book and a camera are two normally unrelated items, but items which, in combination with a normal American family, form the basis for the 1952 class play, "Good Housekeeping."

Marian Burnett (Lorraine MacLennan) is the wife of Charles Burnett, (Bob McMullen), prexy of a state university and former newspaper executive, and is the mother of two teen-aged daughters, Katy (Shirley Townsend) and Chris (Carol Scott).

Marian is upset because she feels that her family doesn't need her any more. Her daughters are nearly grown-up, and she is in the clutches of a domineering maid, Mrs. Benson, (Judy Jenney). In a desperate effort to feel needed, Marian contrives to get her family mentally happy by taking up the study of home-psychology.

Katy is upset because her boy-friend, Nat Kahn, (Charles Hazard) has invited her to the 'Ivy Day Ball,' and she stands an inch taller than he in her evening slippers.

Chris is upset because her boy-friend, Eddie West, (Dan Walsh) is more interested in politics than he is in her.

Last, but far from least, Charles is upset because his family is upset and because his wife has turned psycho-analyst.

Marian thinks that Charles would be happier if he were governor. She and Eddie, who is a newspaper reporter, set out to get him elected.

Eddie interests the local political boss, Jim O'Neal (Bob Silveira) in running Charles for the position, but this plan doesn't meet with the approval of Marian. She detests the arrogant and greasy O'Neal and everything he stands for. She would prefer her husband to run on an independent ticket.

Accordingly, the obliging Eddie concocts a scheme whereby Nat, unmindful of the purpose, takes a pieture of Charles and his family, which Eddie prints on the front page of the newspaper, along with an "unauthorized" interview announcing Charles' independent candidacy in the gubernatorial race.

The result is pandemonium. Charles is angry, Jim is furious, Chris is seething, and Marian is scared but pleased. After several hectic scenes, elimaxed by a parade down Main St., in which he is carried on the shoulders of four female cheerleaders, (Carol Campbell, Janice Bumpus, Anita Cornell, and Harriet Garcia) led by a drum majorette, (Louise Lopes) Charles becomes angry enough to see through O'Neal's previously impenetrable mask of affability and decides he is going to campaign for the governorship and sweep the O'Neal machine right out of the state.

Whether Charles wins the election, we do not know, but Marian gives up her study of psychology, Charles is happy to be running for governor, Eddie is glad that his scheme worked, Nat is just happy, Chris and Katy are re-united with Eddie and Nat — and harmony is restored to the Burnett household.

A good deal of the fun we derived from putting on the play came during rehearsals. Between lines we managed to squeeze in sandwiches and other odd bits of food. What a wild time we had collecting furniture in one of McMullen's vans!

One night Miss Hoyle had us cleaning up the set, and the task of polishing the brass andirons fell to yours truly. What a mess! There was metal polish all over the place — on the floor, on the rug — every place but on the andirons. It helped some when Miss Hoyle told me to put it on with a cloth instead of my hands.

About an hour before curtain time, Silveira fell asleep on the couch with his shoes off and a newspaper over his face. "Mac" slept in the chair.

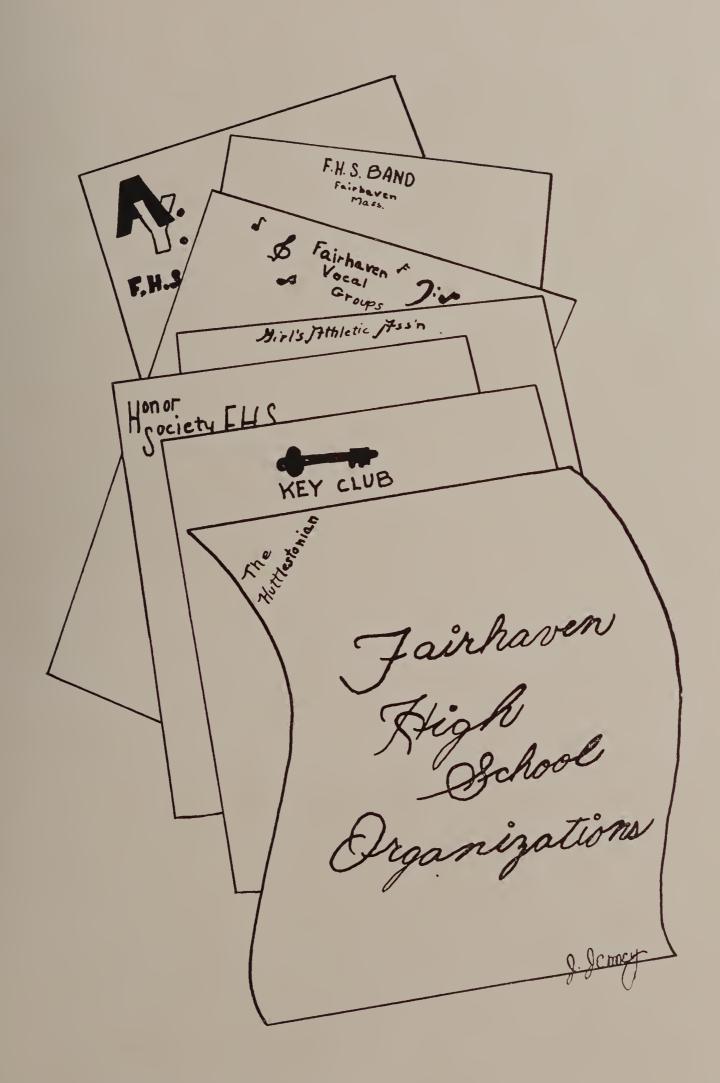

During the last few rehearsals, and on the night of the play, we played cards and Chinese Cheekers with the property girls, (Vieky Razon and Maureen Huggard) and stagehands (Bob Law, Joe Sylvia, and Bob Russell). Without the assistance of these people, our production would not have been possible.

The entire cast owes Miss Hoyle a debt of gratitude, which is hard to pay. To her we give our undying thanks for her patient, eeaseless, and at times nearly hopeless efforts to make the play a success.

All in all, the presenting of our play was great fun, and we are sure that as our senior year takes its rightful and revered place among bygone days, none of us will ever forget March 21, 1952, or the ten weeks preceding it.

Honor Society

Scholarship, Leadership, Service, and Character are the four ideals on which the Fairhaven High School Chapter of the National Honor Society was founded in 1927. Initiation of students who have been able to meet the high standards of this organization is held in January of each year. The new candidates stand, forming a shield, while holding a flaming torch, the emblems of the society, as they promise to uphold the standards of this organization. Officers for the following year are installed in June.

New members admitted on January 30, 1952, are: Dorothy Alden, Karin Anderson, Blenda Covill, Charles Hazard, Carol Scott, Seniors, and Beverly Bleakley, Ann Chase, Helen Joerger, Donald LeBlanc, Betty Sylvia, and Elizabeth Sylvia, Juniors.

The Key Club

The Key Club of Fairhaven High School is one of many such clubs in the United States and Canada sponsored by the Kiwanis Club. The group's motto is "We Build."

Throughout the United States and Canada, Key Clubbers are learning valuable ways of working for the betterment of others, and, in so doing, are bettering themselves. Contact with leading men in the community is another valuable privilege enjoyed by Key Clubbers.

This year our club has engaged in numerous projects. To state the largest would be to mention our "Coke" concession, which is run at all of our home basketball games.

The funds obtained from this project are used in sending delegates to our district convention in Boston, which is held in the spring. We also send delegates to an international convention which will be held in Chicago this year.

We were very fortunate this year to have as our guest, Ellis Kinder, Boston Red Sox pitcher.

The faculty adviser of the Key Club is Mr. Phillips Noyes, and the honorary adviser is Principal C. M. Downing. Officers for the 1951-1952 season are: Anthony Albert, president; Albert Bernard, vice-president; Ronald Hansen, secretary; and Russell Arruda, treasurer.

First row: Mr. Downing, principal; R. Hansen, A. Albert, A. Bernard, R. Arruda, Mr. Noyes.

Third row: P. Fitzgerald, W. MaeLean, B. Povant, R. Brennan.

ATHLETICS

A sour

Pootball

There could be no more explicit proof of the spirit and team integration which existed among the 1951 football squad than the spectacular victory over New Bedford. Expectations were slight at the beginning of the season when spectators wondered how a squad including but five of last year's lettermen could meet a heavy schedule with success.

The team found Coyle to be an experienced and rough opponent; before the smoke of battle had begun to clear, Fairhaven had lost the services of linemen Hassett and Hemingway. Vocational, however, was not so lucky, for on the following Saturday, Fairhaven, displaying a spirited brand of playing, managed to tie the rivals from across the river. Defeats were suffered at the hands of Attleboro and Barnstable, but, as the season neared its close, the Fairhaven team suddenly caught fire and upset favored Falmouth. Then, once more rising magnificently to the occasion, the blue-clad warriors of Fairhaven took New Bedford into camp, and for all concerned the season was now a success.

The season ended with a near upset over powerful Taunton.

THE SCHEDULE:

Fairhaven	0	Coyle	39
Fairhaven	13	Vocational	13
Fairhaven	6	Attleboro	25
Fairhaven	0	Barnstable	25
Fairhaven	20	Falmouth	6
Fairhaven	6	New Bedford	0
Fairhaven	19	Taunton	25

Basketball'52

"Good job! well done!" Praise once more was brought to F. H. S. by the excellent record of its basketball team. As in past years, more than ninety boys were out for basketball, but because of the limited facilities available, this number had to be cut to twenty. The younger and smaller eighth graders and freshmen were given training under Mr. Clement and held their own in the Gateway League.

The varsity won fourteen straight extending the victory streak to 21 before dropping a hard fought contest to Coyle. Bouncing back, they won seven of the last eight games to close the season with a twenty and two record. Important wins were gained over New Bedford, Taunton, Coyle, Voke, and Holy Family.

With this fine record, the team received a Tech Tourney bid and met South Boston in the opening game. This year, victory did not smile upon our boys, and they lost a heart-breaker 47-40.

Credit for this year's success goes to the hard work of the players and especially to the excellent coaching and strategy of Mr. Entin.

Baseball'51

Second row: Coach Clement, R. Perry, A. Allerdt, E. Allaire, N. Hansen, G. Viera, R. Monteiro, Mgr. Third row: W. Bettencourt, A. Cabral, M. Bordwick, W. Sherman, P. Fitzgerald, T. Dudgeon.

Last year our basketball nine under the able guidance of Coach Alec Clement had a very successful season with a record of ten wins and four losses.

Among the highlights of the season were, a no hitter by Bart Leach, and victories over our arch rivals, New Bedford and Vocational High.

Tennis '51

The resumption of tennis at F. H. S. found twenty enthusiastic aspirants. From this group, Mr. Cook was compelled to reduce his squad to five regular players. The season, though boasting no victories against seven defeats, was far from a discouraging one, as the team improved rapidly.

With the return of all lettermen, the 1952 season promises to be an auspicious one!

Girls' Basketball

This year ushered in the novelty of the Narragansett Girls' Basketball League. The league was divided into two sections with our division made up of teams from New Bedford, Vocational, Dartmouth, and Westport. As a grand finale, the Narragansett League held a play day at Westport at which New Bedford, winner of this series, and Dighton, victor of the other section, played for the championship. The final turnout was a co-championship between the two teams.

Fairhaven's own team ended the season with two victories and six defeats. Coached by Mrs. Ann Sullivan, the new players of the team showed considerable progress throughout the season. Though the girls weren't too successful, with several veteran players returning, there are high hopes for next year.
